Concern over level of pesticide in river

DEBRA FOX

HIGH levels of pesticide – up to 100 times the UK and EU limit for drinking water – have been found in the River Stour.

The toxic ingredient, the same as that in slug pellets, was discovered at a record level of 10microgrammes per litre instead of the 0.1mg standard.

The Stour, which is tested weekly by Natural England and the Environment Agency, was said to be at its worst near to Haverhill and Sturmer.

The weekly tests discovered record levels of the pesticide last November. These high levels continued through until March this year.

Experts say slug pellets put down by farmers during the heavy rain-fall last Autumn ran-off into the Stour, causing the high concentration of toxins.

Farmers have been urged to use minimal pellets, fertilisers and weed killers this coming Autumn to try to avoid the same thing happening again.

But members of the Green Party say that these measures are not enough to combat what could have been harmful levels in drinking water and that tighter regulations need to be brought into force.

Robert Lindsay, of Babergh Green Party, said: "Essex and Suffolk Water no doubt believes that levels of this toxin in drinking water are not high enough to directly damage human health.

"But the EU has set high standards because nobody knows what harm these toxins will do if they build up in river ecosystems.

"It is our water that is being poisoned and it is our water bills that will have to rise to pay for the clean up."

Ten microgrammes per litre of the toxin were also found at Langham water treatment works intake last year. This is where Essex and Suffolk water extract its drinking supply.

The levels there were monitored closely and are now also back within the limit.

The Stour plays host to rowing, canoeing and sailing clubs as well as the odd brave swimmer.

Mike Finch, Trustee at River Stour Trust, told the Weekly News he was worried that such an active river could have these sorts of problems.

He said: "It's a worrying thing to hear that it's happened, but good to hear that it's going to be controlled."

"The water here is used by canoeists, fishermen and us because we hold boat trips along the river."

"The canoeists definitely go in and we get others occasionally swimming here."

Richard Thompson, a water resources manager for the Environment Agency, explained that the pesticide levels are back to being within the EU standard.

He said: "At their highest level, the concentration of metaldehyde posed no risk to river ecology. Our scientists found that concentrations are several orders of magnitude less than required to cause ecological harm."

"The Health Protection Agency has confirmed that levels in tap water do not pose a risk to human health."

Dr Rupert Read, Green Party candidate for East Anglia in the 2014 European elections, said climate change is causing unpredictable and wetter weather and that the government needs to act now to put preventative measures in place.

He said: "We need to tackle the root-causes of a problem such as this."

"We need tougher action to prevent dangerous climate change and we need more organic farming which doesn't damage our rivers."

EXCITING things are happening with your favourite local newspaper ...

We are working on bringing a new, modern and innovative service to our readers and our advertisers, here in Haverhill and the surrounding villages.

As a result of this, we are looking at a new way in which we can maintain our presence in the community. The old model of a High Street shop is becoming less relevant in the modern age of being able to do so much in terms of communications and online.

To keep up with these changes we are introducing a new approach that will start with the closure of our current office in Queen Street. The doors to this shop will be closing for the last time tomorrow.

In the meantime, we are busily working up plans to introduce a new drop-in hub or zone within the town for people to pop into to handle basic transactions with either our sales team or our reporters. We are not quite ready with this yet but we are in discussion with potential partners on this.

Between now then please don't worry – our dedicated Haverhill reporter, Debra Fox, and our advertising sales staff, Louise Cohen and Russell Boughtwood, are still with us and providing you with the best local newspaper, both in print and online.

And you can still call us on the existing phone number, 01440 703891, with enquiries, to leave a message for our sales staff, or with general news. You can also get Louise on 07881 105869 and Russell on 07881 093015.

Copies of the Haverhill Weekly News will still be delivered through doors as they currently are, and you will also be able to pick up a copy in Déjà Vu cafe in Queen Street and from most of the estate agents in the town.

In the near future, we will be back to share with you our plans which we think will revolutionise the way a local newspaper works.

Happy birthday to town's leisure centre

■ DEBRA FOX

HAVERHILL Leisure Centre is preparing to mark the anniversary of its major refurbishment in 2009.

The leisure centre, on Ehringhausen Way, was re-opened on July 4, 2009, after a massive £5.2 million revamp.

The award-winning centre has had an eventful four years – it has been visited 1.4 million times since re-opening, has had visits from famous faces and has worked hard to raise money for charity, including raising more than £3,000 in total for Sport Relief.

This year alone has been packed with memorable events.

Students from Castle Manor Academy helped unveil a make over on the centre's play area, more than 60 staff members took part in a charity Zumbathon for St Nicholas Hospice and Duty Manager Wes Purkiss came in first place in two body building competitions.

Centre Manager James Purkiss could not be more proud of his team.

He said: "We have gone from strength to strength over the last four years.

"Most of the people who work here are local and they put their heart and soul into it, so it's more than a job for most of them."

The centre will turn four years old on July 4.

Mr Hancock said: "Conservatives want to give the British people a say. That's what this innovative campaign will help us to do.

"If you care about giving millions of Brits a vote on Europe for the first time in 40 years, please co-sponsor our Bill, and fight for change."

SLIMLINE: Allyson Rogers, left, slimmed down from a size 22 to a size 10. She is pictured above and below, before losing weight, and the photo below was the one that spurred her into action.

Step out into the street party and celebrate the weekend

FESTIVAL fun is set to spill out onto the streets this weekend with two community events overflowing with activities.

Haverhill Street Festival is kicking off at 10.30am on Saturday on the High Street, followed by the Community Extravaganza on the town's recreation ground.

The street party will see dancers, musicians and performers from every genre imaginable join forces to provide a wacky day of fun for anyone who happens to pass by and can't resist taking part.

The extravaganza, held by the Castle Parntership will boast stalls from 20 different charities as well as a whole host of games.

Whether you want a turn on the bouncy castle or to try your hand at the bucking bronco there will be something to take your fancy.

Entertainment at the extravaganza will be provided by top children's entertainer Captain Calamity and the afternoon will be rounded off by a balloon release at 3pm.

Go along and enjoy the plentiful entertainment at both events for no cost to round off the Haverhill Arts Festival, which closes on Sunday, in style.

A new challenge for super slimmer

A SUPER slimmer, who has plummeted from a size 22 to a size 10, will now take on an even bigger challenge.

Allyson Rogers, 40, of Schoolfield, Glemsford, plans to climb Kilimanjaro in aid of Help For Heroes after shedding eight stone in a year.

The 40-year-old, who previously tipped the scales at 18 stone after bingeing on a diet of crisps and chocolates, has switched to healthy eating and a strict exercise regime.

The mum-of-two decided to get into shape after seeing a photograph of herself in the paper after she had done the catering for a 100th birthday party.

Allyson, who works for Eats Catering at Samuel Ward Academy, said: "I saw that photo and I was like 'oh no, I need to do

She hired Chris Kinfella, a personal trainer based in Sudbury, who put her on a 1,200 calories a day diet and a fast-paced work out.

Since losing the weight Allyson, who has a 13-year-old daughter, Libby, and son Jacob, 11, has done the Race for Life and the Amsterdam Half Marathon.

Her next challenge, which will begin on October 4, is to climb Kilimanjaro in eight days.

The 40-year-old goes running, attends boxercise classes and plays squash as well as still having sessions with Chris.

She said: "It's going to be mentally challenging, and that's something you can't train for."

Allyson will be part of a 30-strong team who will climb for between six and 12 hours a day for eight days.

The mum-of-two also has to raise the £4,500 target set by Help for Heroes to be able to take part in the climb.

Allyson plans to hold two ladies nights, one in Haverhill and one in Clare, to help her cause.

She said: "There's going to be two male strippers and a drag artist and I'm hoping to get someone from Ann Summers along as well."

Allyson is also doing a bag pack in Bury Asda on July 6 and 7.

Start your engine for Summer Bash

DEBRA FOX

HAVERHILL'S biggest summer show is set to be opened with a bang.

The Summer Bash, to be held on the town's recreation ground on July 21, already has a packed programme of music, stalls, shows and other entertainment in place.

And chairman of the show committee and photographer David Doughty has revealed that the proceedings will be officially started in style as a fleet of classic cars guide the way to the recreation ground.

They will be led by Haverhill's very own famous car - a stylish Courier-Cadillac, which was rebuilt by local business owners.

Town Mayor Cllr Roger André will open the show, riding up to the entrance in Haverhill's pride and joy motor.

He said: "We're really looking forward to revitalising the Haverhill show. We're looking forward to having some good weather and enjoying ourselves."

Mr Doughty said the Haverhill car will be followed by an Aston

STYLISH: Haverhill's very own classic car will lead the parade

Martin, an old Ferrari, a Rolls Royce Fountain and a replica of the iconic yellow Only Fools and Horses Reliant Robin.

The cars will form a procession to the front of the arena on the recreation ground, where they will park up to start the show.

The committee are also working towards finding a band to start the event.

Mr Doughty said: "We already have bands from Samuel Ward and Castle Manor performing."

"We're going to have a real mix of music with four or five different groups."

Haverhill Silver Band will also make an appearance to provide some of the Summer Bash soundtrack.

A fancy dress competition will take place at the start of the show... so get creating those costumes!

Other activities will include a sword fighting demonstration in the arena, as well as a host of traditional activities and games.

There will also be the opportunity to take part in the Baby Show, Dog Show, Flower Show and Cake Show.

The Summer Bash will take place on Haverhill's Recreation Ground on July 21 from 11am. A 'lazy car boot sale' will start at 8am.

Proceeds are going towards Lamp H, the main beneficiary, The Food Bank, The Scouts and the elderly.

Summer fun at school fete

ENJOY a splash of summer and get down to a summer fete.

St Felix R C Primary School in School Lane, Haverhill, are holding the event tomorrow from 5pm until 8pm at the school.

Children, parents and visitors to the school can unite and enjoy hot and cold refreshments as they browse both traditional and modern stalls.

There will also be a tombola and raffle if guests want to try their luck and a face painter on hand for those who want to get involved in some good messy fun.

Take a walk, for the good of your health

LIVE Well Suffolk are encouraging people to take to two feet after a report has revealed that doing short walks during the day can prevent type-2 diabetes.

Diabetes UK estimates that there are up to seven million people in the UK at high risk of developing this strain of the disease, but research from George Washington University showed that those who take a 15 minute walk after each meal are able to better control their blood sugar levels.

Steven Lee-Foster, Director of Live Well Suffolk said: "Walking is one of the easiest types of exercise you can do, so we hope that these new findings will encourage people to put on their walking shoes and take the time to step outside."

Tributes paid to town stalwart Russell, 75

THERE FOR EVERYONE: Norman Russell

A DAUGHTER has paid tribute to her 'kind and generous' father, a well-known figure in and around Haverhill.

Norman Russell of Highfield, Clare, died on June 16, at the age of 75 after being admitted to hospital with chest problems.

The grandfather-of-three moved to Haverhill in 1979, where he started working as the caretaker at Burton End School.

He later worked at Clare Middle School as caretaker and was also involved with many voluntary community activities in the town.

He spent time working as a Special Constable with the Metropolitan, Avon and Somerset forces before taking up the role with Suffolk Police for 10 years.

He went on to work in Highpoint prison, and daughter Debra, 47, told the Weekly News how his compassion spilled over into the role.

She said: "He never judged anyone and he was always there for everyone."

"When he came across the bad sort of lads that no one ever had the time of day for, he was the kind of guy who was there for them as well."

Norman was also involved with the Haverhill Amateur Dramatics Society, along with the rest of his family, and the Parkway Community Centre.

He was also active in the town twinning project with both France and Germany.

Debra said: "He had a good sense of humour and I have been told by so many people recently they remember him this way."

Norman also leaves wife Patricia, son Andrew and grandchildren Emily, Joseph and Stella.

He and Patricia had been married for more than 50 years, and celebrated their golden wedding with a small family party.

"If we managed 52 years he couldn't have been that bad," she said.

"He was a good bloke and I'll miss him."

His funeral is taking place at Bury Crematorium on July 3 at 2.15pm.

Family flowers only, but donations can be made to the Emphysema Foundation.

A WOMAN is on a quest to return a gaming console to its rightful owner.

A Nintendo DS was handed to Leanne Bronson's six-year-old daughter in the street on Sunday, June 16, by a lady who had found it while walking her dog.

Leanne, who lives on the Chalkstone Estate, has reported the item to the police and would like to be able to return it to its rightful owner.

Firm to expand with new branch

A RECRUITMENT agency are widening their custom and opening a new office.

Crem Recruitment, based in Camps Road, Haverhill, are taking their services to a new premises in Cambridge, which will open on July 1.

The company will continue to work hard from their flagship Haverhill branch while the new branch, in Cambridge's Vision Park, will handle staff requirements from the Cambridge area.

Managing Director Colin Saunders said: "These are exciting times at Crem. We have established an excellent reputation and client base in Haverhill and we are now looking to replicate this over in Cambridge.

"We have seen a high demand for staff from companies of all sizes in the Cambridge area so it makes perfect sense to open a branch there to cope with this influx."

Opening the new office has also meant that Crem have recruited some new blood to add to the already strong team.

Two new consultants have been chosen to take charge at Vision Park, while Crem look for new staff for both Haverhill and Cambridge offices.

Operations Manager Kate Wright said: "Sourcing and selecting the right team for the new office has been incredibly challenging as the top talent in our industry are difficult to attract. To have on board two vastly experienced and very in-demand consultants is a credit to Crem as a company."

We needed this a long time ago

HAVING lived in Haverhill since 1963, I have seen Dr Beeching wield his axe in closing the railway.

We used to have two stations once, all we have really done is build more homes, that are affordable, whether it be private or renting.

The real issue is that the Haverhill Vision 2031 should have happened in 2000, the start of the next millennium. If it had started then, new roads, railway, the whole infrastructure would have been far easier, and much cheaper.

Blinkered vision by the powers that be, we now see what a real mess we are in.

The estimate of 4,300 new homes over the next 18 years, the traffic increase, no rail link to anywhere, why would anyone in their right mind, family or business want to come here?

The Man Alive programme made in the 1960s shows an insight to what the future will hold for Haverhill, none really.

Haverhill is the forgotten town of Suffolk. Back in the early 60s the promise of so much, in reality delivered very little.

Did you know that Ford were going to come here, but a block was put on that? The rest is history.

Shame really, Haverhill is now a poor excuse for a town, knowing how slow things get done here, perhaps Vision 2031 should have happened in not in 2000 but as early as 1970.

Children go wild at the zoo

PUPILS from a Suffolk primary school took their lessons to the great outdoors with a study trip to Linton Zoo.

Children from Glemsford CP School near Sudbury spent a session learning and looking at tigers, lions, and lemurs as well as other creatures from around the world.

The pupils also received a special chance to get up close and personal with some of the animals.

The chance to get out of the classroom and into the thick of wildlife lived up their science lesson no end.

Sue Attfield, Class Teacher, said: "We had a perfect day. We liked all the animals at the zoo, especially the talking parrots."

"The keepers were lovely and told us lots of information." Visit www.lintonzoo.com

FAMILY SERVICE on Sunday 7 July at 10.45am. There will be refreshments after the service. All welcome.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE next meeting will be on Tuesday 9 July at 7.30pm in the Meadow School. HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY The recent outing took 35 members and friends, with waterproofs at the ready, to Sandringham.

A tour of the park and gardens with a guide took up the first part of the visit.

The main feature of the parkland is its wonderful trees, some up to 800 years old. There are delightful glades, several with lakes or ponds, bordered by shrubs, trees and mixed planting. Magnificent vistas await one at every turn and it's hard to believe that only 4 gardeners keep the 60 acres looking so wonderful. The walled garden, dating from the early 20th century, was a particular delight with the old brickwork setting off the espalier fruit trees, vegetables and herbs. Everyone was interested to hear that the Royal family are regularly sent gifts of daffodil bulbs which are all planted in the grounds at Sandringham making a stunning display in the spring.

The landscape is enhanced by a number of small dwellings such as Queen Alexandra's "Nest", the church of St Mary Magdalene dating from 16th Century and the coach houses and stable block which house the museum.

After lunch the group were able to enjoy the interior of the house which is wonderfully light and airy with huge windows overlooking the gardens.

The ballroom currently has a fascinating exhibition of pictures celebrating the 60 years of Her Majesty's reign including the huge jigsaw puzzle recently featured on the news when it collapsed only 3 weeks before being sent to Sandringham in time for the Jubilee.

The rain finally fell as everyone was in the house or making their way to the gift shop but they left in sunshine after a very enjoyable day.

ANNUAL SHOW

With this warmer weather, the gardens are now in full bloom & looking beautiful. So hopefully there will be plenty of produce, flowers and plants to display for the Annual Horticultural show on Saturday 27 July, in the Meadow School.

Trophy holders are reminded to return cups etc, cleaned, to Frank Morgan asap. Why not enter your vegetables, fruit & flowers, show your skills in the domestic, photography young and floral art and/or show off your handicraft work. Remember too that there are competitions for primary school age children. Schedules are available at the Post Office. The show will be open to the public from 2pm -4pm.

PARISH COUNCIL

At their meeting on June 20, Linton councillors were advised of the resignation of Trysha Hunt. Chair, Enid Bald, is keen for people interested in village issues to come forward to serve on the council.

Leanne Fisher, local PCSO advises that CCTV outside Linton Co-op to record illegal parking would be ineffective as the police cannot issue tickets retrospectively. David Champion is now suggesting hiring a traffic warden to monitor the area, sharing duties with other villages might be the only deterrent.

June 13 was the official launch for four new council houses to be built on the garages site in Chalklands. Roger Hickford advised that the target is for initial occupancy by the end of this year.

It was agreed to install CCTV warning signs at each entrance to the recreation ground. The A4 signs will cost £36 each.

Responding to a request by Jo Duncan of The Woodlands, councillors are considering paying for one cut of half the grassed land between the River Granta and Kingfisher Walk and the nearby verges, even though the area is not owned by the parish council.

Kate Wright of Lonsdale has asked for a 'children playing' sign to be erected at the entrance to Lonsdale to alert drivers to reduce their speed. David Lines of the highways department advises it is dangerous to encourage children to play on any road. The footpath is for pedestrians and the carriage-way is for cars and not a playground.

Complainants about overflowing waste bins on the recreation ground and Camping Close have been advised that the village custodian is away sick and clearance is being temporarily undertaken by the district council.

John Taylor of Balsham Road has requested all illegal signs and advertisements be removed immediately. He says there is no exemption in the law for the Linton flower festival signs, even if they are to raise money for a charity.

The district council tree officer recommended removal of the large beech tree outside the Old Manor House, Green Lane, as it suffered fungal decay at the roots and was unsafe.

WARNING: Colin Clifton-Brown has tightened security at his farm after his £45,000 tractor was stolen

£45k tractor theft sparks warning

A FARMER who spent £10,000 on security after his tractor was stolen has voiced a warning to others in his trade.

Colin Clifton-Brown, whose £45,000 tractor was stolen from Dearsleys Farm, Little Bradley, near Haverhill, was determined to deter thieves from targeting his property again.

The 49-year-old, who lives about three quarters of a mile from the farm, discovered that his tractor was missing one morning.

Colin said: "We didn't realise straight away that it had gone. We used to own another farm as well and we were assuming it was there."

"There was a sighting of a low loader in the middle of the night that night – so we were fairly confident that somebody had set out to steal it."

Less than a week later, police found Colin's tractor in a shed in the Fens.

Shortly afterwards, he spent thousands on securing his property.

He said: "We put alarms on all of our farm buildings and we put up security fencing."

"We did it because we need to store stuff outside."

Colin explained that if the tractor had not been recovered it would have cost the farm trade as it happened at the busiest time in their calendar.

Though he had never had a tractor taken before, Colin previously had scrap metal and diesel stolen from the farm.

He said tractor theft was becoming more common and that farms across the county are seeing all sorts of equipment going missing.

The security investment was installed as an extra measure against thieves and the farmer admitted it has been successful so far.

He said: "Touch wood, we have had no further problems from it, but if they really want to get in they will get in. I think it's just a question of making it more difficult for them."

"Thieves are now moving on from building sites to farms – so we all need to act together and make it as hard as we can."

Glass act comes to town church

BROKEN windows at one of Haverhill's churches are finally being repaired after more than six months.

The stained glass windows at the Old Independent Church in Hamlet Road are being restored to their former glory after vandals destroyed them with stones in Autumn last year.

Church treasurer Colin Lott said they have been waiting for English Heritage and St Edmundsbury Borough Council to give their consent for the repairs, which started on Tuesday, to go ahead.

He said: "They are going to take out the broken windows and take them away to repair them and but them back in. It's going to take six weeks.

"Because we're a listed building it takes a long time to make sure that any repairs are done the correct way."

The beautiful glass works were pelted with rocks, which struck holes in the glass.

The attack on the Grade Two listed building was not an isolated event.

The church windows have fallen victim to similar damage before with £3,500 in repairs being paid out in 2011.

It is expected that the windows will be back in place, and in one piece, in early August.

Bishop moves on to pastures new SUFFOLK'S Church of England Bishop Nigel Stock has revealed he will be taking up the role of Bishop at Lambeth later this year.

The Rt Rev Nigel Stock, Bishop of the St Edmundsbury and Ipswich Diocese will be leaving his beloved county after being asked by the Archbishop of Canterbury to become part of his senior team, based in London.

He will leave Suffolk in late October, having led his current diocese since 2007.

He said: "My wife Carolyn and I will be very sad to leave this lovely diocese and county. We are so grateful to God that we were called to be here, and for all the support and care that we have been given."

The thousands of church-goers who make up the diocese have also recently said goodbye to Bishop Clive Young, Bishop Nigel's deputy, who retired after 40 years service to the Church of England.

Bishop Nigel, 63, became a Lord Spiritual in March 2011. He attended Durham University and studied at Ripon College, Cuddesdon, for ordination.

The bishop has also spent time in the Diocese of Durham, Newcastle and Aipo Rongo. He was appointed as Bishop of Stockport in 2000 before moving to Suffolk.

Face your fears

Spider-fearing reporter Debra Fox went to meet hypnotherapist Peter Doherty to see if he could cure her of her qualms – and dragged chief reporter Chris Elliott along too

LOOK down on me all you want, but I'm happy to hold my hands up and admit that when it comes to creepy crawlies, I'm a total girl.

Catch me on a good day and I'll approach the many-legged beasts with a glass as my weapon to try and stop their onslaught – but nine times out of ten, I'm bested.

On a bad day you'll find me on the sofa in the foetal position while I wait for my boyfriend Jamie to come home and rescue me from spiders the size of my fist.

Or fingernail.

It must have been on one of those braver days when I agreed to undergo Havening, a psychosensory therapy, to try and stop me seeing these creatures as enemies and reach out my hand to their feeler.

Accompanied by Cambridge News Chief Reporter Chris Elliott, who I was sure would be willing to stomp on a few spiders for me if necessary, I braced myself for a treatment session from hypnotherapist Peter Doherty, a former Police Trainer working in Haverhill.

Peter served for 17 years with the police and during his time there developed an interest in how the mind works in pressure-filled situations.

From his base in Anne of

BRAVE FACE: Debra, during her session with Peter Doherty

Cleves House, Hamlet Road, Haverhill, Peter is well equipped to treat phobias, anxiety, pain and grief as well as taking on requests for weight loss and quitting smoking.

Perhaps it was his soothing tone that drew me in, though I suspect that may have been a trick, but whatever it was, I found myself spending Friday night waiting for my date with a load of insects.

Peter explained to us that Havening, created by Dr Ronald Ruden, uses touch as a therapeutic tool to alter an individual's mood, thoughts or behaviour.

It involves recalling a traumatic memory and using touch to distract from the symptoms it brings to the surface. The most effective places for touch are the hands, the upper arms and the face.

In the hot seat, Peter asked me to explain what turned me off about spiders. The way they move and the amount of legs have always bugged me.

He then instructed me to pick a tune I liked to hum and recall a happy memory.

Closing my eyes, I had to imagine my discomfort on a scale of one to 10 if a spider was in the room. I chose a five.

Humming my tune, a peppy Paramore number, remembering a place abroad where I always liked to swim, and rubbing my hands up and down my arms, Peter asked me to imagine I was walking down 20 steps, counting them as I go.

On my last step, Peter brought my thoughts back to the phantom spider in the room, which I still felt was at about three on the panic scale.

We repeated the process of humming, remembering and counting until I could say it did not bother me at all.

Pretend spiders, fine, but when Peter proposed a trip to the cellar in Anne of Cleves House I have to admit, my chest felt a little tight.

I was led down the rickety stairs to a dusty room full of webs but, as luck would have it, not too many live spiders.

The delicate webs seemed more intriguing than disgusting this time and I was more than happy to lace my fingers through one.

To me this was an achievement, though it may seem a small one to some.

Peter and I are currently in talks about a trip to Linton Zoo to see some tarantulas.

Let's see how brave I am next time.

■ Visit www.hypnotheraphaverhill.co.uk for more about Peter's work and www.havening.org for more on the treatment.

Cured? Only time will tell ...

FEAR OF DOGS: Chris Elliott has yet to decide whether he is cured of his life-long anxiety after his session with Peter, pictured right

BY CHRIS ELLIOTT

JOURNALISTS are a suspicious bunch – it's a prerequisite of the job – so I approached hypnotherapy with my usual scepticism. If it's that easy to cast off your innermost fears, why isn't everyone doing it?

I can't say, in all honesty, that my session with Pete has cured me of my own personal nemesis – a deep-seated nervousness of dogs. But I must also say, in all honesty, that I did leave feeling very relaxed, and wondering, who knows, if perhaps the first little step towards freedom from a lifetime anxiety had been taken.

Having explained how a traumatic event (in my case, being attacked by an alsatian as a child and badly bitten all over my body) can leave enduring mental scars, Pete asked permission to try to get me to confront that event. The technique seemed rather trite and obvious: close your eyes, think of a place you love to be, hum a comforting little tune, imagine you're climbing a flight of stairs and count them, one to 20; coupled with havening (Pete gently running his hands up and down my arms in a soothing way, the way a mother might caress a crying child). Yes, I thought, through not fully-closed eyelids, I can see what he's doing here, and I'm not going to be taken in. But we're all the same – our bodies and our brains cannot help reacting to stimuli, and against my conscious judgement, I felt my breathing slow down, my jaw slacken, my head slump forward a little onto my chest. Pete's whispery voice asked how my dog anxiety seemed, on a scale of 10. At that moment, it seemed pretty low, a three or a four.

Having ended the session, and walked back to my car (encountering a man coming towards me with an agitated-looking boxer halfbreed straining on a leash, but not, as I normally would, edging away to a safe passing distance) the question is: has it worked? Am I less frightened than I was? The honest answer is, I just don't know yet.

Business minds in the finals

A TEAM of pupils from Castle Manor Academy triumphed in a business competition.

The squad, which consisted of Tom Drayson, Seb Hammond, Dawid Kierkowski and Grace Lawrence, fought their hardest in the Gala Final of the Talent Business Competition, which was held at the Lord Ashcroft International Business School, Anglian Ruskin University, on June 10.

The finalists for the competition were chosen out of 420 teams, who had to provide written submissions.

The year 11 pupils were judged throughout the day by industry experts and managed to scoop third place.

Seb also took home an award for Outstanding Student in the Competition.

TRIUMPH: The Castle Manor team came third in the finals of the competition

CXG go to Number 10

A HAVERHILL businessman met the Prime Minister on a visit to Number 10. Robin Pilley, co-founder of letting agents CXG, was invited to the event, after the firm scooped The Gold Winner award for East of England Letting Agent of the year at the Lettings Agency of the Year Award in London.

Mr Pilley also met Chancellor George Osborne and Vince Cable at the gathering, as well as advisor to Lord Sugar, Karren Brady.

Robin said: "Although it was a personal invitation it is a tribute to all our staff and a reflection of their hard work and dedication which is evidenced not only by such a prestigious invitation but also by the number of awards achieved by CXG over the last few years showing ethics and integrity is the cornerstone of our operation."

The prize adds to a collection of five other awards won by CXG over the last three years.

INVITATION: Robin Pilley and David Cameron

Firms unite for a green future

■ LIZZY BUCHAN

A UNIQUE business event is taking place in July to highlight how Cambridgeshire companies can work together for mutual gain.

The Unite Summer Business Forum, held in partnership with our sister daily paper Cambridge News, will bring together exhibitors and speakers to help drive sustainability through collaboration at the BMW showroom in Cambourne on July 10.

Elms Cambridge and brand communications specialists Method will host the forum which will focus on thinktank hub sessions where ideas and expertise will be exchanged.

One of those hosting a hub will be the Low

Carbon KEEP programme, which has designated more than £3.2 million of ERDF funding to support collaboration between SMEs and research providers on 'low carbon' projects in the East of England. The scheme helps businesses to improve their competitiveness by working with an academic and a graduate.

Low Carbon KEEP Programme Administrator Georgi Mirazchiev said: "Unite is the perfect event for us because it's all about working together to build a stronger future, and that's exactly what we strive to achieve."

"We help build mutually beneficial partnerships between businesses and universities, and are looking forward to sharing our experiences on July 10."

To find out more about the Unite Summer Business Forum, please visit www.sbfunite.co.uk.

All's fair in fundraising for annual Horseheath event

MONEY raised from a country fair is going towards helping the East Anglian Air Ambulance.

Horseheath Racecourse will host the annual event on July 7 and there is already a packed programme of events lined up to entertain parents and children alike.

The fun day will include a range of activities from dog and pony shows to clay shooting as well as having beer and tea tents and a barbecue.

Local produce stalls will also be on site.

The fair is also being sponsored by Carter Jonas, who have pledged their allegiance to a range of country events this summer season.

Richard Hatch, residential partner for Carter Jonas, said: "The annual show is a calendar event in so many rural communities across the country."

Spend your Sunday doing a good turn for the charity - and hope for some sunshine.

EAAA Fundraising Manager, Barbara McGee said: "The East Anglian Air Ambulance is entirely dependent on local fundraising and so we are enormously grateful to the Horseheath Country Fair."

Stop at the red light and eat yourself healthy

SUFFOLK dietitians have praised the new plan to colour code food packaging.

Members of Live Well Suffolk have spoken of the encouraging move to traffic light nutritional information to make buyers aware of exactly what they're eating.

A green panel will indicate that the food is healthy, an amber will say it's alright and a red will warn the consumer that this food is only to be eaten in moderation.

All of the major supermarkets and several big manufacturers have agreed to take part in the scheme, which will appear on shelves over the next 18 months.

Live Well Suffolk dietitian Heather Osborn said: "We are really pleased to see that the government is taking the issue of food labelling seriously. For many people, food labels can be difficult to understand, so we fully support any system which will make it easier for consumers to recognise the nutritional content of what they are eating."

It is hoped that the food labelling will help to combat obesity as people start to understand the impact of the ingredients in their food.

Joe wasn't just my son, he was a friend... I hope I'll see him again

HEARTBREAKING: Brad Herrington has spoken of losing his 14-year-old son suddenly

Most dads look forward to Father's Day, but for Brad Herrington – whose son Joe died suddenly aged 14 – it will always be one of the hardest days of the year, as he told Emma Higginbotham

BRAD Herrington's Cambridge home is full of life. Chickens cluck happily in the garden, a tubby Jack Russell called Mr T snuffles around the kitchen, a fluffy ginger cat lounges on a chair, and the babble of children's voices spills through from the front room – his wife Daniela is a childminder.

But for Brad, who's father to Georgina, 24, Rebecca, 21, and 12-year-old Jake, the house will always have an emptiness. On April 22, 2011, his son Joe died suddenly while playing football with friends.

It transpired that Joe, who'd turned 14 a fortnight earlier, had an undiagnosed heart condition. There were no symptoms, no warning signs, and Joe couldn't have been much fitter: "He was captain of the school rugby team, played county rugby, and swam like a fish," says Brad. "He had everything going for him; he was doing brilliantly at school, he was brilliant at sports, and he was a nice kid.

"We were in the Co-op one day, and there was an old couple, who must have been about 110, and they couldn't understand why the staff wouldn't go and get their shopping for them if they gave them a list. So Joe said 'We should get it, Dad'. So he got the list, and went round the shop, and took it all to their car for them. She went to get her purse, and he said 'No, it's all right, thanks', and off he went, didn't want anything for it.

"And on the day he died, he was quite pleased he was able to get something off the top shelf for a lady who asked him."

It was Good Friday, a beautifully sunny spring day. Brad, Daniela and their two boys went shopping for a picnic, which they ate at Grantchester Meadows, and then headed to Scotsdales. "Daniela was buying a huge bag of dog food, and Joe just picked it up and threw it on his shoulders. She said 'You'll hurt yourself', and he said 'Don't worry mum, I'm strong'."

When they came home, the boys decided to go the Rec to play football with a couple of friends: "Joe said to me 'I'll take your bike dad, so I can put the ball in the basket', and I said 'Yeah, no problem'. And he said 'See you', and I said 'See you'. I didn't even look up."

At about 4 o'clock, Brad's phone rang. It was Jake. "He was upset; he said 'Dad, come quick, Joe can't breathe.'" He ran to the Rec, but it was locked; a paramedic was climbing over the gate, and someone told Brad to come through their back garden, "so I ran through. And Joe was lying there. He wasn't moving. I didn't know if he was breathing or not."

While the paramedic worked on Joe, Brad called Daniela and his daughters, telling them to get there as soon as they could. Meanwhile, the fire service arrived to cut through the lock on the gate.

"I couldn't understand what was going on; I didn't know what had happened to him. Daniela was down there with him, saying 'Come on Joe, get up'. Then they took him away in an ambulance. The fireman was saying 'He'll be all right', but I knew he didn't know."

At the hospital, Brad and Daniela were ushered into a room, "and they said he'd died. It was like a living nightmare. It's so difficult to comprehend, it just felt like it wasn't real," says Brad. "We went in to see him; he looked like he was asleep. And I just noticed how long his hands looked. He looked so big, lying there. He looked like I'd seen him thousands of times before, just asleep."

In shock, the family realised there was nothing they could do but go home, "and leaving him at the hospital started a complete catalogue of the worst things I've ever had to do in my life," says Brad. "You come home and what do you do? You can't think about anything else, you can't do anything."

Wherever they turned, reminders of Joe were lying in wait: "His stuff was everywhere; I tripped over his slippers," says Brad. "I put his shoe in a bag, and carried it with me, because when I opened it up I could smell him. Daniela still sleeps with his scarf."

A few days later the pathologist called. He told the Herringtons that, as they can't do tests on a non-beating heart, they'd never know for sure why Joe died, and put it down to Sudden Arrhythmic Death Syndrome (SADS). With Joe's body released for burial, Brad then had to make another unimaginable decision: "Where do you bury your son? We drove round some cemeteries and the crematorium, but didn't like any of them. Then we drove to St Mary's in Hardwick, because that's where Daniela and I had got married. We walked in, and it was a sunny day – there was a breeze and all the yew trees were blowing – and Daniela said straight away 'This is it'."

"Then we had to sort out what he was going to wear. So we got his Vans trainers that his sister bought him for his birthday, his skinny jeans, his favourite T-shirt and hoodie, and his brand new, never-worn black Superdry coat. His mum bought it for him to go to school in, and he never even wore it, because this all happened in the Easter holidays. He was so looking forward to wearing it to school, because it looked smart."

"Then we went to see him, and I kissed his cold forehead. Jake didn't want to go, but he bought him a brand new rugby ball, and I put in his rugby boots and his mouth guard, and said 'You'll be needing them'."

One thing that really touched the Herringtons was just how much Joe's team mates from the Cambridge Rugby Club and schoolfriends at Chesterton Community College clearly loved him.

"Lots of kids came to see us, and they said he was always smiling, always laughing," says Brad. A special coach had to be laid on to take them all to the funeral, and speakers were put outside the church so that the overspill of 250 mourners could listen to the service.

The first Father's Day, not long after Joe's death, didn't go well. "The kids wanted to go out for lunch," recalls Brad. "I didn't want to go, but I was trying to be normal for them. The girls had their boyfriends with them, and there were seven of us. We sat down, and I realised that there was an empty seat in front of me. And that was it. All I could do was stare at the seat. Last year we went out for dinner on Father's Day, and although it was a table for eight, they made sure that the spare chair wasn't in front of me or Daniela."

After doing some research into SADS, Brad was amazed to discover that every week in the UK, at least 12 people aged under 35 die suddenly as a result of an undiagnosed heart condition. As they rarely have any symptoms, the only way to detect a potentially fatal abnormality is by having a screening, "so we started raising money to have a screening done at the school". The first was held over two days in May; nearly 200 people were tested, "and it was really emotional, but it was great to see something done," says Brad. "I think all kids should be tested, and tested regularly if they're into heavy sport. It only takes 10 minutes."

The procedure involves having an ECG (electrocardiogram), which gives a printout for a doctor. If they spot something, they'll then do an ultrasound. Of the 194 tested, around 30 had an ultrasound, "and there were five referrals to hospital, so potentially we could have saved someone's life," says Brad.

One thing's for sure: the Herringtons are determined to keep Joe's memory alive. "He had the biggest feet, the loudest laugh and the smelliest farts, which he took great pleasure in!" says Brad.

"Joe wasn't just my son, he was my friend, and the only thing I hope is that there's an afterlife. I can't wait to be with him again."

Group has important service

AN UMBRELLA transport group has spoken out against local bus services being cut.

Suffolk Community Transport represents 19 groups across the county, including Haverhill, Newmarket and Bury St Edmunds, and has declared that these community groups are providing a life line to residents in local communities.

Chief Executive of Suffolk Community Transport Yvonne Chappell explained that Suffolk's 19 community groups are providing a wide range of transport options between them as a means to keep people mobile. She said: "More commercial transport links are being cut in rural areas than anywhere else and a recent survey showed people in East Anglia are amongst the most likely in the country to face transport poverty, which means people's quality of life is being adversely affected as they have no access to transport due to age, rural isolation, accessibility or physical and mental disability."

the GUIDE

It's job Dunn

- Films 21

- Weekend TV 24

STRUTTING the Chester cobbles of Hollyoaks as teenage temptress Mandy Richardson, Sarah Jayne Dunn had her fair share of dramatic storylines.

A feisty wannabe supermodel, she suffered sexual abuse at the hands of her father, clocked up numerous failed relationships, lost daughter Grace to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, discovered her mum having an affair with her boyfriend and to top it all, found out the man she'd drunkenly slept with had murdered her partner. Phew, it's no wonder that having first walked into the long-running soap as a 14-year-old, the pretty blonde was checking out a decade later, proclaiming she'd spent "more of my life as Mandy than me".

Going on to grace stage and screen, from touring in comedy Boeing Boeing and When Harry Met Sally to appearing in The Dark Knight alongside Christian Bale and setting up her own stage school in Liverpool, Sarah Jayne is facing her biggest challenge yet playing Isabelle in the stage adaptation by Rachel Wagstaff of Sebastian Faulks' acclaimed novel Birdsong.

The intimate story of love and sacrifice follows Englishman Stephen Wraysford as he embarks on a passionate and dangerous affair with his host's wife, Isabelle Azaire. As war breaks out and he leads his men through the unimaginable carnage of the Battle of the Somme, the shrinking memory of his beloved Isabelle is the only glimmer of light in a world of darkness.

Sarah Jane said: "It's a tough show to do. We're nearly halfway through our tour now and you get reminded night on night of how touching the material is, though the audience really do that for us too. Last night a lovely lady stood up on the front row at the bows and she was really cheering through her tears, so it does touch people and it's still very relevant. It's really emotional and it's a good challenge to keep that feeling fresh."

But did she feel institutionalised when she left Hollyoaks after so long?

"It was the first time I'd gone out there to audition and that's why I left really, because obviously starting at 14 that's all I knew of the industry and it's not the reality. The reality is being unemployed and being in-between jobs and working on shorter stints of things. I was 24 and I wanted to see if I could do it and what it would be like doing the whole audition thing. But it's paid off, I've been busy thankfully."

Busking bonanza!

THE full line-up has been announced for this summer's Cambridge Buskers and Street Performers Festival!

Dancers, jugglers, musicians, singers and magicians will be taking to the streets for hour long slots as part of the city-wide busking and street performing extravaganza.

First launched in July 2008, the festival is gearing up for its fifth year and aims to celebrate and showcase street talent from across the county, entertaining shoppers, visitors and culture-vultures alike.

Throughout the weekend, events will kick off from 10am until 4pm in locations around the city including Mill Road, Christ's Pieces, Hope Street Yard and the Grafton Centre, with the Myaor opening the festival on Friday.

You'll be able to swing dance along with Cambridge Lindy Hoppers, catch some bboyin' with urban youth group Sincru and join in with some traditional fenland folk dancing courtesy of the Gog Magog Mollies. Classical music lovers can enjoy the likes of solo clarinetist David Waterhouse, violin and cello duo In-2-Mezzo, and a troupe of young string musicians, Cambridge Suzuki Group. There will be lots of ukuleles being bandied about (looking at you

The Misspent Ukes), comedy magicians, guitarists and indie-rock bands, plus blues and world music from Vox Mondiale and Siyaya Arts.

Basically, you're going to struggle to get round town and see everything, it's that packed a line-up. Budding musical types can also sign up for free ukulele or harmonica workshops on the Sunday at Millers Music Centre on Sussex Street. And of course you'll have to make time for everyone's favourite Singing Binman...

To top it all off, you can vote for your favourite performers. Last year's winner, singer-songwriter Gavin Adam Wood, went on to record his debut album, Souls Apart. He said: "The Buskers Festival is a magical experience. The past few years have seen great changes in my life."

The festival is being run by City Centre Management at Cambridge City Council and Cambridge News is proud to be a media sponsor.

For the full line-up and performance times, visit www.cambridge.gov.uk/buskers-and-street-performers-festival.

film of the week

Despicable Me 2 (U, 98 mins)

WORKING to the principle that you don't mess with a winning formula, directors Pierre Coffin and Chris Renaud deliver more warm-hearted thrills and slapstick spills in the sequel to their delightful 2010 computer-animated adventure.

Despicable Me 2 doesn't quite attain the dizzy heights of the original and lacks some of the heart-tugging emotion and warmth that epitomised Gru's journey from cackling arch-villain to surrogate father. Young audiences won't care though – the action sequences are bigger, including a James Bond-style opening sequence over the Arctic Circle, and the humour is just as silly.

Screenwriters Ken Daurio and Cinco Paul have realised that the Minions are the star attraction, scene-stealing with googly-eyed gusto, so the diminutive yellow sidekicks are pushed squarely to the fore in the second madcap mission. They are firmly embedded in the main plot, almost elbowing Gru and his girls into the shadows, including the introduction of a new hybrid of Minion a la Gizmo and Strike in Gremlins that surely doubles the merchandising opportunities.

Despicable Me 2 begins shortly after events of the original with Gru (voiced by Steve Carell) living in unconventional domestic bliss with his girls Margo (Miranda Cosgrove), Edith (Dana Gaier) and Agnes (Elsie Fisher). He has turned his back on skulduggery and now devotes his subterranean bunker to the production of jams and jellies under the supervision of technical genius Dr Nefario (Russell Brand).

When a new threat to global peace emerges, Lucy Wilde (Kristen Wiig) from The Anti-Villain League stuns Gru with her lipstick taser and pressgangs him into working for the good guys to uncover the mastermind responsible for the theft of a top secret serum.

Despicable Me 2 inspires a few paternal oohs and aahs as Gru navigates the road bumps of parenthood, including a last-minute crisis at little Agnes's birthday party. The romantic subplot between the supposedly unlovable reformed villain and Lucy is predictable but sweet, and the rest of the script follows a similarly linear trajectory.

Defend your garden

THE other day, I wandered up the garden to find that some of my favourite emerging phlox had been razed to the ground, devoured by something which left just the stems at ground level.

Rabbits? Could be. But no, the next day the culprit returned for second helpings – a large black cat with a penchant for perennials, so now I’m keeping a powerful water pistol by my patio door to scare off any such intruders.

Indeed, one man’s pet is another man’s pest so it’s useful to know how to control them.

And it is often a matter of trial and error. What works for one gardener may be of no value to another. The only real deterrent may be a 6ft fence all the way around your garden, buried about 45cm (18in) into the soil so rabbits and other tunnelling creatures have less of a chance of penetrating your boundaries.

However, fences can be expensive and are often not easy to erect if you have mature shrubs and trees growing on your boundary line, so here’s a few solutions you might try to deter some of the nuisance animals into your garden.

- Cats: There are a number of battery-operated deterrents on the market which, when switched on, pick up movement with an infra-red detector and then emit ultrasonic, high-pitched frequencies that reputedly scare off the culprits. They are not audible to humans and the usual range is about 10m (33ft) over an arc of 70 degrees.

Another solution is to put down citrus peelings or lemon scent where the cats are causing the damage, or prickly prunings around their favourite plants.

They are less likely to use your garden as a litter tray if they have no access to bare soil – especially dry, loose soil. Try growing the annual Coleus Canina, labelled as the ‘Scaredy Cat Plant’, a pretty blue-flowered annual which smells foul to cats. It’s widely available online.

- Rabbits: These fast-breeding mammals can cause massive damage to vegetables and flowers and are a particular problem in rural areas. The only real defence is a rabbit-proof fence buried around 45cm (18in) into the soil and about 1m (3ft) high. You could also try growing plants which rabbits don’t like, such as very aromatic plants, plants that ooze caustic milky sap, prickly plants, plants with spines or plants with tough leathery leaves. These include astilbe, berberis, agapanthus, nicotiana, hydrangea, geranium, euphorbia, hypericum, helenium, rudbeckia and phormium, but there are many more. Be warned, though, if they are hungry, rabbits will eat anything.

- Squirrels: The scourge of bird-lovers nationwide, squirrels will steal bird food from any receptacle it can get to, but there are now a lot of squirrel-proof feeders on the market to deter them. They can also damage plants, as they eat bulbs, shoot tips and flower buds, as well as stripping the bark from trees. The only effective protection is to secure net-covered cages for groups of plants and individual tree guards to stop them stripping the bark.

- Foxes: They can dig up clumps of your lawn, flower beds and vegetable plots, but alas there’s not much you can do about foxes. Avoid using fertilisers such as blood, fish and bone, which will attract them to the smell. Go to a zoo and speak to the keepers about getting some lion urine, which apparently foxes hate because of the smell. Sprinkle it over the entrance to and exit from their run and you may deter them.

- Muntjac: These nuisance deer, natives of southeast Asia, strip rose bushes of buds, chew their way through shrubs and perennials and are territorial, so tend to return. Aside from putting a 6ft fence around your garden, you could try growing plants they’re not so keen on, including camellia, cistus, hellebore, hosta, hydrangea, lavender, poppies and sedum. If you want to preserve the balance of nature, you could grow alternative food for the deer, allowing an area at the end of your garden to be devoted to brambles, rowan, dandelion, campion and yarrow. Hopefully they will prefer these to your roses.

Make Trax to Two Counties Sunday!

WITH just a few days to go before the Two Counties Motor Show, the stands are being prepared and attendees are lining up their offerings to ensure that the region's premier motor show is a huge success for everyone.

Among those making a first appearance is Cambridge MG, the Buckingham & Stanley-owned dealership which has been revitalised under new ownership this year.

"We will be displaying both the MG6 saloon and hatchback but we are also hoping to secure a pre-launch edition of the new MG3 which goes on sale officially in September," says Buckingham & Stanley's managing director James Howarth. "This new addition to the range will now finally start the process of broadening the MG range and will be available in a choice of wacky colours all of which can be personalised with various graphics.

THE CHEVROLET TRAX: Part of the deal at Sunday's Two Counties Motor Show.

The new arrival shows that MG is making a serious attempt to move the model and the brand to both a younger and wider audience."

Also at the event will be Cambridge Chevrolet.

"For us it'll be lovely," says Cambridge Chevrolet general manager Luke Gordon. "The Trax (pictured above) will be there, it's the sister to the Vauxhall Mokka, they're both part of the General Motors platform. We just got the demonstrator delivered yesterday and it will be part of the whole range on display – about a dozen cars including the Camaro, Aveo, Volt, Spark, Cruze, Captiva and the new Trax, which is priced from £15,495."

Other attendees will be the entire range of marques from the Vindis Group.

One of the group's key features – along with the multitude of vehicles from Bentley, Audi, Skoda, Volkswagen and Volkswagen Commercial Vehicles – will be a Park Assist demonstration area.

Many of the vehicles on show feature park assist. This feature is where a car will virtually park itself, cleverly steering into the tightest of spaces at the touch of a button. All the driver needs to do is work the pedals.

Park Assist works by pressing a button and activating an indicator before the car passes the parking space. Ultrasonic sensors in the front bumpers will scan the space to see whether it is big enough.

Once the car is stopped and reverse gear is selected, the driver can let go of the steering wheel and Park Assist activates. The car shows you its intended reverse path on the multi-functional display, then puts the car into the best starting position and steers automatically into the space. Even though the driver does not have to steer, they are always in control of the car, working the accelerator, the brake and the clutch. The system can be deactivated immediately by taking over the steering or by braking to a standstill.

At the Two Counties Motor Show, Vindis Group employees will be demonstrating Park Assist and will be on hand to discuss this and any other features on the great range of vehicles that will be on display.

Savage blows earn big win

HAVERHILL II cruised to huge 223-run victory over Ipswich III in Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship, Division Five thanks to a century from Liam Savage.

Haverhill scored 277 for 3, with Savage scoring his first century for the club.

Openers Dan Pass (56) and Rob Dovaston (82) had got Haverhill off to an excellent start with a partnership of 128, while Savage top scored with 102 not out.

In the field, Martyn Wilkins was bowled a superb spell with 2 for 2 off six overs, which included five maidens. Callum Brunning took 2 for 21 to rip out the middle order, while Joey Kettle 4 for 14 cleaned up the tail as Ipswich were all for 54.

In Division One, Haverhill firsts fell just short by nine runs in their top-flight clash at Wivenhoe.

They had the hosts rocking on 2 for 2 before holding them to 193 for 6.

Kyle Blanchard (45) and Luke Youngs put together 52 for the third wicket, while Dan Poole added 32, but it was not enough as the visitors were all out for 184.

Blackjacks fall to heavy loss

HAVERHILL Blackjacks suffered the heaviest defeat in their brief history with a 31-12 drubbing at Herts Raptors in the British Baseball Federation A League.

Following the first inning Blackjacks were 3-2 up, but pitcher Tommy Opal found himself up against a smaller strike zone that he had trouble working with as Raptors piled on the runs to go 15-3 up.

With tempers flaring among the Haverhill players, they went 21-4 down after four innings.

But following some words from head coach Steven Esdale, the visitors burst into life at the top of the fifth inning with six runs.

Raptors responded by adding 10 runs, but despite Haverhill scoring two more in the sixth inning, the game was called off following a downpour.

Irons show steel

SIMON Iron, Chris Iron and Alice Iron were victorious in the Peggy McGhee Cup at Haverhill Golf Club.

In the stableford event played off full handicap with teams comprising one lady and two men – one high and one low handicap – they scored 109 points.

Second place went to defending champions Doreen Darbey, Steve Ward and James Iron, who returned 104, while Richard Peck, Tony Weller and Catie Heathfield were third with 99.

Father-and-son pairing David and Michael Perrett managed to halve their game in Haverhill's match in the second round of the Hambro Cup against Waldringfield, but the other pairs lost as the club's run came to an end.

Gordon Price captained the team and said: "We fielded a very strong Haverhill team and the match was all square after the morning matches."

"However during the afternoon Waldringfield stepped up a gear and used the home advantage to secure an overall win by 10 holes."

However, there was better news for the Tolly Cobbold Cup team – skippered by Bob Spittle – who won their second round match against Bungay 25 up, having led 10 up after the morning singles. They face Fynn Valley in the third round at home on July 21.

■ Lyn Fish reigned supreme in the ladies' first major of the season at Haverhill Golf Club, the June Smith Silver Salver.

On a course set up for the Suffolk Amateur Matchplay event, Smith scored 33 points to beat Mary Sail by two. Pat Kennedy was third with 30.

Gill Clark, Mary Turner, Lynda Bartlett and Cathy Hatcher from Gosfield Golf Club won lady captain Sheila Price's Charity Day with 109 points. Val Harrison, Amanda Young, Rowena Haslam and Pat Machin from Bishop's Stortford were second with 107pts and Bury St Edmunds' Sadie Tricker, Bev Allen, Sue Brinkley and Sue Drummond were third with 105.

Manor of Groves' Penny Hudson was nearest the pin and Gosfield's Lynda Bartlett hit the longest drive.

■ Haverhill's junior team of Liam Merritt, Michael Perrett, Daniel Bentley, Louis Martin, Mitchell Davis and Ollie Stevenson lost 4-2 to Bungay in the third round of the Suffolk Junior Team Handicap and Haverhill's ladies team lost to Gorleston in the Weston Cup.

■ Tom Daniels, Ben Potter, Evan Gard

and Ben Stanley were the winning team in the Midsummer Madness competition which began with a shotgun start at 5.30am and saw three scores counting on each hole.

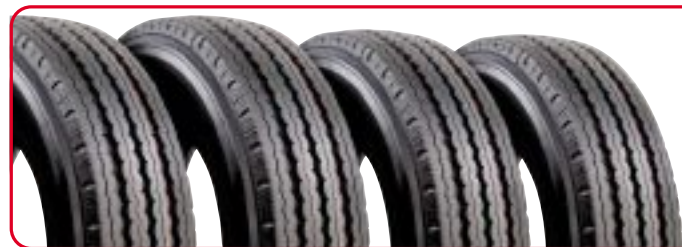

They returned 122 points to beat Russell Palmer, Andy Gage, Anthony Choat and Mathew Farlie, who scored 119. Ollie Stevenson, Jake Warner, Ollie Fish and Joshua Dashwood were third with 117.

Haverhill's Perrett, Merritt and Stevenson were beaten in the third round of the Junior Club Championship at Felixstowe, scoring 80 points compared to their opponents' 105.
